Asbestos sheets are being substituted for the mattresses of sleeping cars on the railways of the United States to shut out the heat from the sleepers underneath.

The tip of the tongue is the most sensitive part of the human body, and is followed in this respect by the fingertips. The least sensitive parts are the back and the outside of the thigh.

After devoting several years to the observation of the eyesight of insects, Professor Alexander Petrunkevitch of Petersburg comes to the conclusion that the spider's eye is constituted very much like man's, but that man's eyesight is superior to that of spider.

The fatigue toxin obtained by Weidert from the muscles of tired animals has been now extracted by him from such vegetable substances as alfalfa, poppy-heads and curare, and has been also prepared by oxidizing albumin. When swallowed, the vegetable toxin yields the same fatigue effects as the animal toxin.

The rapid water erosion of parts of Cape Colony is attributed chiefly to burning of vegetation and the starting of paths by cattle and wagons. Once started, erosion is very rapid, and the Ongers, or Brak River, which did not exist sixty years ago, now averages three hundred feet in width and fifteen feet in depth.

The qualities of seed used by plants may depend upon conditions not yet sufficiently considered. Late observations in Switzerland and Austria have shown that plants grown from seed of spruces of a high elevation, such as six thousand feet, make much slower progress than plants from seed of trees of lower elevation, like two thousand feet. Other characters, such as the weight of the seed, length of growing period, and possibly tendency to disease, seem to vary with the situation of the seed trees.

As a precaution against coal-dust explosions, Professor William Galloway (formerly Professor of Mining of the University College of South Wales and Monmouthshire), in the course of his evidence before the Royal Commission on Mines, said that if the coal dust in a roadway in a mine were regularly blown, say daily, with a sufficient amount of salts containing large quantities of water of crystallization, or with much larger proportions of the dusts of clay, slate, limestone, chalk, or other substances it could be rendered quite as innocuous as if it were damped with water.

Queer Ways of Becoming Dead.

A circular issued by the Travelers' insurance company tells of some queer ways in which its policy-holders have met death.

B. F. Elbert of Des Moines, Ia., drove a pair of horses that took fright and plunged into a stream. His wagon was overturned, pinned Mr. Elbert under water and he was drowned. John H. Keeler of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., while walking over a railroad crossing stubbed his toe and fell, fracturing his skull. He died five minutes later. Henry S. Potter of New York, an ice doorman, when cutting bread in his thumb. Blood poisoning developed and he died in thirteen days. Charles A. Redmond of Cincinnati, struck his toe against a bedpost. Blood poisoning followed and he died six days.

W. H. Barnes, manager of a detective agency in Seattle, was waiting to take a steamer when he fell into the water and was drowned.

Patrick McGarry, proprietor of a saloon in Chicago, was held up by highwaymen, who fractured his skull. He died three days after.—New York World.

Electric Traction for Railways.

The United Kingdom is not keeping up with many other countries in respect of the adoption of electric traction for ordinary railway purposes. We have not it is true, the waterfalls of Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, and northern Italy have to fall back on for generating electrical energy. We have almost the cheapest coal in the world, our distances are comparatively slight, and we have far more traffic to deal with than any other country having a similar area.—Light Railway and Tramway Journal.

"Heaven helps those who help themselves," quoted the moralist. "Oh, I don't know," rejoined the humorist, "Heaven doesn't seem to get busy in behalf of the man who helps himself to other people's property."—Chicago News.

A Matrimonial Express. Mrs. J. R. Gill's annual Easter excursion to Washington, which is known all over the State as the "Matrimonial Express," left this morning with ten cars packed to the doors. It is said that the train carried at least twenty-five couples who are making the trip with matrimonial intentions. A great many of them came from other parts of the State to make the trip to get married.—Richmond correspondence Baltimore Sun.

TORTURED FOR SIX MONTHS

By Terrible Itching Eczema—Baby's Suffering was Terrible—Soon Entirely Cured by Cuticura.

"Eczema appeared on my son's face. We went to a doctor who treated him for three months. Then he was so bad that his face and head were nothing but one sore and his ears looked as if they were going to fall off, so we tried another doctor for four months, the baby never getting any better. His hand and legs had big sores on them and the poor little fellow suffered so terribly that he could not sleep. After he had suffered six months we tried a set of the Cuticura Remedies and the first treatment let him sleep and rest well; in one week the sores were gone and in two months he had a clear face. Now he is two years and has never had eczema again. Mrs. Louis Beck, R. F. D. 3, San Antonio, Tex., Apr. 15, 1907."

The masses of Greek and Romans and the rank and file of people throughout the Middle Ages thoroughly believed in the imaginary beings. The child has no doubt about the existence of Santa Claus, Jack Frost and a lot of other strange personages and when the mind of the race was in its childhood state men were prepared to be as foolish in their beliefs as the little children are in all ages.—The American.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

Eighty Years Old; Never Voted. All sorts of men are noted for all sorts of things, and here is a man in Rockland, Mass., just deceased, who was famous for having abstained throughout his eighty years of life from casting a ballot. As a boy he listened to political wrangles between the Democrats and Whigs, and became so disgusted with politics that he vowed he would never go near the polls. What a text for a sermon on the duties of citizenship! Yet there are thousands of men who are irritated by the evils of politics, and who would rather keep aloof than mix in and help eliminate them. It is so easy to deplore the wickedness of politicians and to assume the holier-than-thou attitude; it is not so easy to come out like a man and take a stand against the politicians. To defy bosses and machines in public requires stamina.—Providence Journal.

Cuba's Present Political Condition.

As the second government of occupation in Cuba draws toward the close, it is gratifying to know that leading Cubans are practically of one mind concerning the value of the service which has been rendered by Governor Magoon. Already one of the leading parties under which political sentiment is organized in the island has placed a presidential candidate in nomination. The impending change in the government of the island is regarded very differently from the similar change which took place in 1902. Cuban eagerness for home rule is not nearly so evident as it was six years ago, but thoughtful observers regard the prospects for successful autonomous government as being much more hopeful now than they were immediately preceding the organization of the first home government of the island.—Baltimore American.

The man who gets there doesn't have to explain the devious route by which he came, asserts the Nashville American.

Nerve Prostration is one of the great troubles that come to weak women, as a result of neglected womanly ills. Pain acts on your nerves, like rust on steel, and they simply go all to pieces. You can't build rusty steel back again, and sometimes you can't renew your nerves, so it's best to begin in plenty of time to take
